Mr. Ben E. Bradford

Senator Parkhouse offered the following resolution:

(Senate Concurrent Resolution 6)

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom, called from these earthly labors a great American and an outstanding Texan, Mr. Ben E. Bradford, who passed away on June 2, 1959; and

Whereas, Mr. Bradford was born in Fort Worth, Tarrant County, Texas, on July 9, 1919. He grew up and lived in the Polytechnic Heights section of that town where his father, Ben E. Bradford, Sr., a well-known pioneer druggist, had a store; and

Whereas, He attended the public schools in Fort Worth, and North Texas State College in Denton. He also attended Missouri University School of Journalism; and

Whereas, He joined The Dallas News first on March 20, 1944. He left the paper in May 1951, to become information man for the Office of Price Stabilization, later joined Watson Associates. In August, 1953, however, he was back with The News to stay; "there was nothing else like it," he said of newspaper work; and

Whereas, He went to work on the Lamb County Leader at Littlefield, in 1940. He was editor, ad-salesman, public relations man and building custodian. A year or so later, he moved to the Dallas Times Herald where he wrote obits, covered the police beat, worked on the rewrite desk and finally became assistant city editor; and

Whereas, At the News Ben covered most runs; wrote politics; worked the courthouse and the federal offices. He sat in on the proceedings at the city hall. His love, however, was the police beat and he worked it as the oldtimers did, prowling the city. At times he carried a .45 and might have needed it. He knew hundreds of law officers and had a speaking acquaintance with scores of criminals. He covered such cases as that of Fred Feliz Adair; and the murder of Rookie Patrolman Johnnie Sides. His biggest story after the war was the running gang war which produced the deaths of gunman Lois Green and gambler Herbert Noble; it was during those months Bradford often worked a couple of nights in a row without sleep. Occasionally, policemen friends would drive him home when the heart had taken too much. He was reported to be the best crime reporter in Dallas; and

Whereas, Ben E. Bradford, Jr., was a Mason; a member of the Stevens Park Christian Church; and belonged to other civic organizations; and

Whereas, He leaves surviving him his wife and a son, Mark Bradford of Dallas, Texas; his mother, Mrs. Annie McCauley Bradford of Fort Worth, Texas; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate desires to pay tribute to the memory of one of its most outstanding citizens, known and loved by thousands of Texans who knew him as one who "lived above the fog in public duty and in private thinking"; and, be it further

Resolved, That when the Senate adjourns today, it do so in honor and respect to this great and good man; and that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the surviving members of his family.

He passed the bar in 1930 and was appointed to the staff of District Attorney O'Brien Stevens where he soon won the respect of all as a capable prosecutor; and

Whereas, In 1934 he was elected to the State Legislature and served one term. In 1939 at the age of 37, Mr. McCalla was appointed Judge of the 127th District Court. In 1944 after resigning from the judgeship, he accepted a position with the Texas Railroad Association as general counsel. He served in this capacity with distinction and integrity. He was a man in whom you could place implicit faith and was a credit to his profession; and

Whereas, He was dedicated to the welfare and progress of his church, the Church of the Good Shepherd in Austin; and

Whereas, He was generous with his time and his talents in the service of the State, of civic organizations, and of society for the uplift of all mankind; and

Whereas, He was an enthusiast of sports. He loved the great American game of golf, and followed faithfully various sports contests of the University of Texas since his student days when he played baseball under the beloved "Uncle" Billy Disch; and
